BIBLIOTHÈQUE NATIONALE DE FRANCE (BnF) TO MAKE THOUSANDS OF TITLES AVAILABLE ON THE ESPRESSO BOOK MACHINE® NETWORK

September 27, 2011 (PARIS, FRANCE, and NEW YORK, NY) – The Bibliothèque nationale de France (BnF) and On Demand Books, the company behind the Espresso Book Machine® (EBM), have signed an agreement that will make thousands of French-language titles available on the worldwide EBM network. These titles, which are public domain and available online through the BnF’s Gallica digital library, include masterworks from writers such as Balzac, Dumas, Flaubert, Hugo, Moliere, Montaigne, Pascal, Proust, Rabelais, Stendhal, Voltaire, Zola, and thousands of others.

Essentially an ATM for books, the patented EBM and its EspressoNet® software system links to a vast network of content, enabling the instant distribution of books, on demand, at point of sale. With the push of a button, the technology prints, binds, and trims a quality paperback book, in any language, with a full-color cover, in minutes. It is an environmentally friendly technology since it eliminates shipping, returns, and the pulping of unwanted books.

“This is the latest big hit for the EBM network,” says Dane Neller, the CEO of On Demand Books. “The BnF’s Gallica digital library is a superb resource and fits well with our point-of-sale technology. Through the EBM network, the BnF is better able to spread access to French culture and reach readers around the world. And as our installations multiply in Europe, Canada, and worldwide—and in universities with French-language departments—we see a growing need to offer the great works of French literature. There is no better start than the national library of France.”
